[Numb. 1098.]

THE South-Carolina GAZETTE.

From Thursday May 29th, to Thursday June 5th, 1755.

KINGSTON, in JAMAICA, April 12, 1755.

On Tueſday laſt the general aſſembly met at this town, and being ſworn in, they proceeded to the choice of the hon. Edward Manning, Eſq; for their ſpeaker; they then waited on his excellency, who was pleaſed to make the following ſpeech:

Gentlemen of the Council, Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Aſſembly,

IT is no ſmall concern to me, that the preſent conjuncture of affairs, obliges me to call you together, at a time when your private intereſts may ſuffer for want of your attendance: But the warlike preparations that are making both by England and France, render it highly neceſſary that all his majeſty's colonies, ſhould be providing for their ſafety and defence. And as thoſe armaments, are ſaid to be in great forwardneſs, I take this early occaſion of calling upon you for your advice and aſſiſtance.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Aſſembly,

The urgent neceſſity to make proviſion for the ſeveral ſervices not provided for by the laſt aſſembly, leaves me no room to doubt of your ſpeedily raiſing ſufficient ſums for them, and to compleat the fortifications at Muſquito Point and Rock Fort; an eſtimate of which I ſhall order to be laid before you.

I alſo earneſtly recommend to you, the providing for the repairing and improving of Fort Charles.

Mr. Sharpe, having tranſmitted me large accounts of diſburſements in your ſervice, I ſhall lay them before you; and I recommend it to your conſideration, to provide for the diſcharge of them.

Gentlemen of the Council, Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the aſſembly

There is nothing that relates more to the public good, than the reviſing and amending your laws, which his majeſty has commanded me to recommend you. Indeed the great abuſe lately committed in the Provoſt Marſhal's office (by which the public has been ſo much injured) points out the neceſſity thereof.

The revival of your deficiency and agency Bills, is all I have more to recommend to you; but ſhould any other matter be thought on by yourſelves, for the good of your country, you may depend on my concurrence.

The aſſembly afterwards proceeded to the choice of their officers, when Samuel Gordon, Eſq; was choſen Clerk; William Jenkins, Eſq; Meſſenger, and the Rev. Mr. Atkins, Chaplain.

To His Excellency CHARLES KNOWLES, Eſq; Captain General Governor, and Commander in Chief of His Majeſty's Iſland of Jamaica, and the Territories thereon depending in America; Chancellor and Vice-Admiral of the ſame, and Vice-Admiral of the Blue-Squadron of His Majeſty's Fleet, &c.

The Humble Addreſs of His MAJESTY's Council of Jamaica.

May it pleaſe your Excellency,

WE His Majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal ſubjects, the council of Jamaica, offer your excellency our moſt ſincere thanks, for your excellency's ſpeech at the opening of this ſeſſion.

We are perfectly ſenſible of your excellency's conſtant care and regard for every thing, which concerns our private intereſts; but as the public good, muſt always be our firſt conſideration, we ſhall on all occaſions, when your excellency may think it neceſſary to call us together, give our attendance with the utmoſt alacrity.

We are not leſs ſenſible of your wiſe and public ſpirited views, for the good and welfare of this Iſland, and nothing can incite our utmoſt gratitude, more than your ardent deſire to put it into the beſt ſtate of defence, at this critical conjuncture.

The reviſing and amending our laws, which your excellency is pleaſed to recommend to us, are objects worthy of our moſt ſerious attention; and we ſhall willingly do whatever depends upon us to accompliſh ſuch deſirable ends.

We cannot at this time omit to renew the aſſurances of our fidelity and attachment to your excellency's perſon and government, to which we are bound both by duty and intereſt: And it ſhall be our zealous endeavours to demonſtrate to the world, how ſenſibly we feel the happineſs of your mild and impartial adminiſtration.

His Excellency's ANSWER.

Gentlemen of the Council,

I Return you many Thanks for this kind Addreſs. Your Loyalty to His Majeſty, and Affection to my Adminiſtration, claim my grateful Acknowledgments; and you may ever be aſſured of my concurring with you in every Meaſure that can tend to promote the Security, Happineſs and Welfare of this Country, which I cannot fail ſucceeding in, whilſt ſupported with your calm and able Councils.

Jamaica, ſſ.

To His Excellency CHARLES KNOWLES, Eſq; Captain General, Governor and Commander in Chief, in and over this His Majeſty's Iſland of Jamaica, and the Territories thereon depending in America; Chancellor and Vice Admiral of the Blue-Squadron of His Majeſty's Fleet.

The Humble ADDRESS of the Assembly.

WE his majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal ſubjects, the aſſembly of Jamaica, return your excellency our moſt ſincere thanks, for your ſpeech, at the opening of this ſeſſion.

The early notice your excellency is pleaſed to give us of the impending danger we are in, by the approach of a war, and your calling upon us, for our advice and aſſiſtance, to put our country into a proper poſture of defence, are ſuch marks of your excellency's paternal regard, that we ſhould be wanting to ourſelves, were we to ommit making you our moſt grateful acknowledgements; and we beg leave to aſſure your excellency, that no conſideration of private intereſt, ſhall ever withdraw our affection from that duty, which we owe to his majeſty, and the good of our country.

Your excellency's acknowledged ſkill in projecting the fortifications of Rock Fort and Muſquito Point, as well as œconomy in carrying them on, are no ſmall inducements to us chearfully to provide a ſufficient ſum to compleat them. And we aſſure your excellency, we ſhall loſe no time in making a proper proviſion for that purpoſe as well as for other ſervices, that the preſent exigency of government may require, ſo far as the circumſtances of our country will admit.

We are truly ſenſible of what importance it is to this iſland, that all its fortifications ſhould be put into a reſpectable condition, and conſider it a particular happineſs, that we have a gentleman of your excellency's great abilities in military matters in the adminiſtration of the government, at a time when a war with a moſt powerful enemy ſeems unavoidable.

Having nothing ſo much at heart as the proſperity and welfare of our country, we ſhall do in all other matters recommended to us by your excellency, what may appear to us moſt conducive to thoſe deſirable ends, and to render eaſy your excellency's adminiſtration.

His Excellency's ANSWER.

I Return you my hearty Thanks for your very kind Addreſs; Be aſſured, I ſhall ever exert my ſelf for the Safety and Intereſt of this Iſland; and I will not doubt, with your Aſſiſtance of making its Inhabitants an happy and flouriſhing People.

Kingſton, in Jamaica, May 3. We are informed by ſome Dutch Captains who arrived at Port Royal on Thurſday evening laſt in a ſmall boat, that the French at Porto Prince, &c. have poſitive orders from their court to take all Dutch veſſels that may be found ſailing in their ſeas, and that there is a 64 gun ſhip and ſeveral guarda-coſtas now cruiſing, who took 26 Dutch veſſels in one day.

ALGIER, Dec. 17.

ON the 12th inſtant, about eight a clock in the morning, the dey was aſſaſſinated in his palace, and the grand treaſurer mortally wounded, by ſix ſoldiers, deſperadoes, whilſt the dey and the treaſurer were diſtributing the pay to the ſoldiery, in the court yard of his palace. They were at laſt cut to pieces; tho' not ſo ſoon but that things hung in the balance for more than half an hour, whether the government would be ſubverted or not. The treaſurer is ſince dead of his wounds.

He had a piſtol ball in his collar-bone,
deep wounds in his arm, two cuts with a croſs his head, his right-hand cut off, an other cleft down to his wriſt. One of t bels, after receiving the pay, and tak
dey's hand to kiſs according to cuſtom,
concealed dagger, and thruſt it throu
dey's breaſt, then fired a piſtol, which w ed the dey in the face. The dey roſe walked a few yards, calling out to his dants, &c. "If amongſt ſo many of
"they could not deſtroy ſuch a vallain," then dropped. Another, at the ſame aſſaſſinated the treaſurer. The firſt comm tor, after killing the dey, took off the (the dey's) turban, and putting it on his head ed himſelf where the dey had ſat, and
ing himſelf ſecure from the ſanction of th (which although he had juſt violated, th
vulgar notion prevailing here, he p
thought if he could once attain, he ſhould acknowledged ſovereign) he began to ha
the divan, and the dey's ſecretaries, wh
all ſeated near him; telling them, that he govern them; that he would make wa

too many; that he would do juſtice

which the divan were forced to order. H ſat, thus unmoleſted, for more than a
of an hour, whilſt the five others were with their piſtols and ſabres. When criſis (for had he ſat but a quarter of an longer, the guns had been fired, and h

him, and killed him. This example was follo
ed by ſome other chiauſes, and his five ac
pliſhes were alſo ſoon deſtroyed.

Tho' there appeared but ſix actors, it

that the reſt, who were perhaps ready on the firſt appearance of ſucceſs, finding

crowd; for the dey was at that time giv pay to no leſs than 300 ſoldiers in his yard. Yet, as incredible as it ſeems, th men ſhould attempt ſuch an action, it is more ſo, that it ſhould have been (as very near ſucceeding; for it is acknow

made) declared, that had the conſpirato

and founded their hopes on a circumſtan which one would have thought would

which, however, had brought it very ne ing accompliſhed, viz. the number of diers there receiving their pay, who alway [illegible] without any arms, when they recei
but when the conſpirators fell to work ſoldiers, not imagining ſuch an attempt
be made by ſix men, without numbers
to back them, uncertain for ſome time
part to take, ran all away, by a priva
door, to their barracks, leſt they might be ſuſpected to be of the number of conſpirators; and the guard of the dey's palace (who always wait without the gate compleatly armed) might come in upon them; but the gates having been ſhut up by ſome of the conſpirators, the guard could not get in to the dey's aſſiſtance, ſo [illegible]

hap-

[illegible] had not the courage to attempt. As they [illegible], on hearing the piſtol-ſhot, and the [illegible] all the ſoldiers within were con-[illegible], and had come ſeverely armed for that purpoſe. Eight or nine perſons were wounded beſides [illegible] or treaſurer.

Ali Baſhaw, the ſon of the Spahi, [illegible] was immediately ſent for, and placed [illegible] the ſeat of the murdered dey; the cannon were fired, and, in one hour's time, from the [illegible] ſituation imaginable, perfect tranquility was reſtored to the city.

The preſent dey's name is Ali Baſhaw. He is a hearty, [illegible] man, of about 46 years old. The [illegible] had reigned about ſix years, and was arrived to the age of 75.

[illegible] conſpirator who killed the dey, and ſat in his ſeat, had been baſtinadoed laſt year by the dey's order, for ſome crime. The conſpirators were all ſoldiers; one of them (as every ſoldier there is a mechanick) ſpun linnen, and another of them was a cobler.

Conſtantinople, Jan. 4. The new grand ſignor having been [illegible] begirt with the ſcymitar, and from that inſtant taken the reins of government into his hands, gains the affection of the people more and more every day. He has already ſo far won their hearts, by his liberality, moderation, and prudence, that every one here promiſes himſelf Oſman's reign will be proſperous and peaceable. His ſublime highneſs has not only confirmed the old miniſtry in their ſeveral poſts, and entered into the ſalutary principles of his brother's government, but he has alſo remitted to the provinces the preſents which they were wont to make at the acceſſion of a new ſultan, and given orders to all the great officers of the Empire, to eaſe the people, as much as poſſible, by leſſening the taxes, and abſtaining from all acts of oppreſſion. He has in particular gained the army, by diſtributing to each Janiſſary twenty piaſtres, and to each Veteran forty; and it is thought, the Janiſſaries on the frontiers will receive the like donatives. This, with the ſums remitted to the provinces, amounts to near eleven millions. It is to be remarked, that the Janiſſaries did not expect above ten piaſtres each. Oſman has alſo diſtinguiſhed his good-nature by rendering that part of the ſeraglio where the three young princes are confined, much more commodious, light, and airy, having ordered a part of the high wall that ſurrounded it, to be pulled down. He alſo ſuffered the eighteen Mooriſh ſlaves, that have been turned out of the ſeraglio, and ſent into exile, according to cuſtom, to keep all the money and effects that belonged to them. But clemency is not the only virtue of which he has given proofs. He has gained upon his people by his love of juſtice. Complaint being made to him, that four colonels of the Janiſſaries kept back a part of their men's pay, on frivolous pretences, he ordered them to be ſtrangled immediately, for an example to others, and caſhiered four captains, who connived at this baſe and cruel fraud.

Mr. Porter, the Britiſh ambaſſador, was the firſt foreign miniſter who was admitted to an audience of the grand vizir, to complement him on Oſman's acceſſion to the throne.

London, Feb. 22. According to ſome advices from Conſtantinople, the new grand ſeignior has always been [illegible] temper, and given proofs [illegible] ſo that it is feared his [illegible] a turbulent one, though he [illegible] at Conſtantinople, [illegible], the grand ſeignior's brother, [illegible] not a natural death, ſince his ſultan highneſs's acceſſion to the throne.

Extract of a Letter from Paris, February 3.

“ M. [illegible], and ſome other perſons of diſtinction, repaired again to Conflans laſt week, in order to exhort the archbiſhop of this capital to comply with the king's moderate and pacifick views, and not to tire his majeſty's patience by perſiſting in diſobeying his orders: But the anſwer they receiv'd from that inflexible prelate was as follows:

“ I make profeſſion of being as loyal and as ſtrongly attached to the king, as any of his ſubjects can be, and of having as much affection and zeal for his perſon and his ſervice, as any man can poſſibly have. In theſe ſentiments of reſpect and ſubmiſſion I have endured the mortifications which his majeſty has been pleaſed to make me feel: If he deſigns greater afflictions for me, I ſhall accept them with the ſame temper. The croſs I wear teaches me that I ought to ſuffer. I am accountable, in quality of biſhop, to none but my ſuperiors in the hierarchical order. The affair of the adminiſtration of the ſacraments belong ſolely to the ſpiritual power, the church, who has receiv'd this power from Jeſus Chriſt himſelf. The form of this adminiſtration, which is of divine inſtitution, is confirmed by the laws and ordinances of ſecular princes, and by the edicts and declarations of the kings his majeſty' predeceſſors, and of his majeſty himſelf. The diſorder of my dioceſe afflicts me; and the prejudice reſulting from it to religion, does not leſs ſenſibly affect me. I am grieved to ſee ſo many eccleſiaſticks reduced to the ſad neceſſity of abandoning their pariſhes, having no other reſource left but flight. Let the parliament impute to themſelves and to their rigorous decrees, the deſertion of thoſe eccleſiaſticks, and all the evils the pariſhes feel in conſequence: Let that tribunal, by ceaſing to arrogate to themſelves a power which does not belong to them, reflect on the incompetency of ſecular courts in matters relating to the hierarchical order and the adminiſtration of ſacraments; and as ſoon as theſe things fall back into their natural order, the evils complained of will ceaſe.

“ Such is the manner in which our archbiſhop always anſwers, when he is preſſed cloſe on this head; although we might learn from the pope that his conduct is reprehenſible; ſince the ſovereign pontiff gives a ſtriking example of an energick ſilence, which tacitly lends a helping hand to the ſilence impoſed by the king's declaration of the 2d of ſeptember.

By advice from Paris of the 17th inſtant, we find that M. de Maupeou, firſt preſident of the parliament, went to Verſailles the 9th, and had an audience of the king, at which he intreated his majeſty to conſider the ill conſequences that might reſult from the conduct of the archbiſhop of Paris, and from the manner in which this prelate would probably continue to act in conſequence of his laſt anſwer. The king received the preſident very graciouſly, and ſaid to him, “ I want to enjoy a tranquility for a few days: Therefore let not the parliament take any haſty ſteps in this affair: I will ſpeedily acquaint you with my intentions. I ſtill leave the parliament at liberty to act againſt thoſe who diſobey my declaration; but, as to the archbiſhop of Paris, I will cauſe him to be exhorted again, in my name, to behave in ſuch a manner as the public tranquility requires.” The people now impatiently wait for the effects of his majeſty's freſh exhortations; but thoſe who know the archbiſhop's temper and principles, aſſure that it will be no eaſy taſk to make him change his mind; becauſe he demands that the preſent diſputes be referred to the deciſion of the next aſſembly of the clergy, which is to ſit in the month of May, and declares that he will ſubmit without reſerve to what they may decree concerning confeſſion certificates.

Paris, Feb. 22. Laſt wedneſday the chapter of Orleans appeared before the parliament and made their ſubmiſſion. They received a favourable anſwer, and were ordered to come again in a few days, in order to receive their judgment. It is thought they will be condemned to pay a ſmall fine, as they made a very humble ſubmiſſion, and promiſed great amendment.

Laſt Thurſday the duke of Nivernois was ſent from the king to the archbiſhop, who told him he had orders from his majeſty to propoſe three things to him, viz. Either to reſign his biſhoprick; to ſubmit to the parliament; or accept of a puniſhment ſuitable to his deſerts; and withal told him, the king would indulge him ſo far, as to give him eight days to prepare his anſwer.
